May Soon Have Key To Secret Of Oil Sands

McMURRAY, Alta. (BUP) — A quest that has been going on for 44 years to find a commercial method of extracting oil from the fabulously rich McMurray oil sands of northern Alberta may soon be accomplished.

The Royalite Oil Company of Calgary and Canada - American Limited recently made a joint announcement that they were undertaking a vast development program that was hoped to produce crude oil commercially from the oil sands 300 miles north of Edmonton.

The program includes the use of a new method to separate the oil from the sand, based on the principle used in milk separation. This process is known as the "Coulson" method after its discoverer. It still is in the experimental stages.

Last year, the Alberta government sold its oil sand testing plant at Bitumount for $200,000 to Canada-American. Under the agreement the oil firm acquired the plant, built at the approximate cost of $700,000, and received a 21-year-lease of 5,874 acres in the neighborhood. Royalite holds a 49,928 - acre prospecting permit in the McMurray district.

Shell Apache Exploration Company has also entered the oil sand field by obtaining prospecting rights over 50,000 acres of land 15 miles west of the Athabasca river.

There is a general renewed interest in tar oil sand development in oil circles in Western Canada.

The Alberta oil sands hold an estimated 300 billion barrels of oil and is the largest single known petroleum reserve in the world.

Police Court News

LAC LA BICHE — In Magistrate's Court recently, Joe Cardinal and Ernest Sheyka were both found guilty of driving motor vehicles without exercising due caution under Section 66 (a) of the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act. The case developed when a car driven by Sheyka collided with Cardinal's car as the latter backed away from the curb on Alberta Avenue. Damage to Sheyka's car was estimated at $300.00 and Cardinal's at $150.00. Each driver was fined $25.00 and costs.

In another case the owner of a truck was convicted of operating a truck without the proper license and of using purple gas. A fine of $25.00 and costs for each offence was levied by Magistrate Franchuk.

Farmers are wishing for nice weather. The machines have been here for almost three weeks to make the road and they have been unable to work more than a few days, on account of the rain. The mail has to be hauled by tractor for 1½ miles to meet the mailman for the last two weeks and sometimes they can hardly pull themselves out of the mud.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Duperron are parents of a baby girl, born June 30, in St. Catherine's Hospital. It is their first child.

Crops look good so far, but we need warm, sunny weather, because the low places are beginning to turn yellow from too much rain.

44-Year-Old Search Goes On To Find Successful Oil-Extractor

McMURRAY, Alta (BUP) — The quest that has been going on for the past 44 years to find a commercial method of extracting oil from the fabulously rich McMurray oil sands of northern Alberta may be accomplished in the near future.

Vandals Destroy Flowers

High on the list of things that Lac la Biche citizens are proud of is the new Provincial Building completed last year. The building houses the Treasury Branch, Government Telephones, Liquor Store, Magistrate's office and Court room, Forestry Department, Municipal Affairs, District Agriculturist, etc., and is a beautiful piece of architecture.

However, in the early hours of July 5 something happened for which no good citizen of Lac la Biche feels the slightest degree of pride. An intruder carefully dug up between one and two dozen flowers which had been recently planted by the caretaker of the building to brighten up the entrance. The same morning a small tree in the neighboring lot had the top broken off.

"Exter" And Crew Leave For North

LAC LA BICHE (BUP) — "The Exeter", training vessel of the Lac la Biche Sea Cadets, started on a cruise of rivers in the Northwest Territories this week. They entrained at 8 p.m. for the north at the NAR station on Monday.

Rev. J. R. McGrane, commanding officer of the corps, will be in charge of the crew of five young boys. They will embark on the venture from Waterways, after their vessel has been carried there by the Northern Alberta Railway.

Cadets chosen to go on the cruise include Nick Mischuk, Paul Rudiger, Laverne Southwick and Roger Couture.

Father McGrane said the party intends to go down the Athabasca River as far as Fitzgerald where a portage will be made from that point to Fort Smith, N.W.T. It is too early to say how far in the the Territories the cruise will go, as a lot depends on how much headway the Exeter is able to make against the current, he added.

The Exeter was made famous by its cruise from Heinsburg to Prince Albert, Sask. in 1950 on the North Saskatchewan River. That was a journey of more than 400 miles.

Teacher Honored

McRAE — A party was held at the school recently for Miss McKean with the pupils and parents being invited.

A lunch was served by Mrs. Zaposzyosky and Mrs. W. Karpyshyn. Mrs. R. Littlechild proposed the toast to the teacher in which she thanked Miss McKean for all she had done for the pupils. and hoped that she would be back to teach again next term.

A Message to Ratepayers ON THE Financial Condition of M.D. Athabasca No. 103

By Reeve Val Breckenridge

There has been a great deal of publicity in the last two weeks over the Auditor's Report in the Municipal District's 1955 Financial Statement. We are not denying that the Financial Report shows a liability of approximately $250,000.00, but we protest the fact (as the past Reeve did at the annual meeting) that no mention was made of the assets by the auditor in his special remarks.

On page 8 of the Financial Statement you will note that the 1955 current year's levy was $271,763.98 and that only $121,296.83 was collected as shown on page 2, leaving a balance of $147,341.98 uncollected. Surely no one can deny the fact that this amount of $147,341.98 is a collectable asset. If it weren't so, then there would be no purpose in levying taxes. Again on page 8 you will notice the sum of $137,487.03 of uncollectable arrears of taxes from previous years. Surely fifty per cent of that should also be a collectable asset. Page 6 of the financial statement shows an item of $10,000.00 due from the Municipal District of Westlock and also a sum of $69,493.09 from the Provincial Government which are obviously collectable assets, thus making a total of $295,587.57 of collectable assets. We feel that this amount should have been mentioned in the Auditor's special report as an asset to offset the liabilities.

Since the spring of 1953 the council purchased road machinery, garage at Colinton and mechanical tools to the amount of $133,000.00, which, although depreciated to some extent, still represents a sound financial investment and an asset to the municipality not to be overlooked. We have, in addition, other assets including Agreements for Sale in the amount of $27,465.89.

From a newspaper circulating in the district we gather that a group of four ratepayers interviewed the Honorable Minister of Municipal Affairs regarding the council's over expenditure and the auditor's special remarks. Because of this, the council was visited by the Deputy Minister and one of his inspectors at its last regular meeting, when the matter of municipal financing was fully reviewed.

We would like to assure the ratepayers of this municipal district that the Deputy Minister is convinced that your council has, in its 1956 budget, taken all the necessary steps to bring the financial position of the municipality to a satisfactory level.

In conclusion, we would like to point out that no council likes to over spend, but there have been times when emergencies have made it impossible for the council to stay within its budget. Snowplowing alone cost the municipality $73,000.000 this past winter. Picture in your own mind what would have happened if the council did not endeavour to keep the school bus and main roads open during unprecedented snowfall and drifted roads.

We feel that we have done what each and every one of you would do if you were in our position. Because of the heavy cost of snowplowing last winter our resources this year will be very limited, and if that should cause hardships and inconveniences to some of you, we hope that you will understand the council's position and give us your wholehearted co-operation.

Yours respectfully,
VAL BRECKENRIDGE,
Reeve for the Municipal District of Athabasca No. 103.

Eighty-Foot Balloons Will Emulate Fantastic Animals In Biggest Parade

EDMONTON (BUP) — With the 17th annual Edmonton Exhibition parade little more than a week away, officials today reported that this year's cavalcade through the oil city will be the biggest one yet.

Giant balloon animals and figures some as long as 80 feet, will be featured in the parade for the first time. The enormous brightly colored balloons which are made of rubber, have been used in exhibition and Mardi Gras parades in the United States for several years.

The 1956 parade, to be held July 16, will have sports as its theme. James Paul, general manager of Edmonton Exhibition Association, said it will especially salute Edmonton's Grey Cup football champion Eskimos. It also is intended to present a panoramic view of all sports activities in the Edmonton district.

Toronto swimmer Marilyn Bell is expected to do the honors this year and open the week long exhibition.

Already 16 bands have announced their intentions of joining in the procession through the downtown streets which will be watched by almost half of the city's population.

Officials anticipate a greater number of country entrants this year than ever before. In the various home specialty classes, country residents have long dominated the prize lists. Likewise, the country schools have been sending in greater numbers of prize winning entries in recent years.

In the parade proper, it is expected that country style dance bands and marching bands will once again add glamor to the biggest parade ever held along Jasper Avenue.

Ju-Jitsu For Trim Figures

CALGARY, Alta. — Forty Calgary women have found an unusual way to keep their figures trim. They have started to learn Ju-Jitsu, and are members of the first class of its kind to be held in the city.

Their instructor is William Lanterman, a graduate of Holland University. The class is made up of business girls and housewives, one of whom is more than 60 years old.

The pupils had various reasons for taking up their hobby, but most admitted they did it primarily for self-defense and secondly to keep trim.

Several classes of Edmonton women have been trained in judo at the Recreation Commission hall in recent years.

Alberta's Rat War Continues

Regional rat control meetings have been held recently at two Alberta points — Oyen and Wainwright. The purpose of the meetings was to review the rat situation and control measures up to the present and to consolidate plans for future operations.

William Lobay, Supervisor of Pest Control for the Alberta Department of Agriculture, reported that rats entered Alberta in 1950. Work has gone on since that time to make Alberta a rat free area. Professional exterminators were hired in 1952 to drive out the rat colonies. 2,700 farmsteads were visited and 600 were found infested.

By 1953, 8,000 buildings in the area north of Medicine Hat along the boundary were rat proofed. It was in 1953 that the poisons warfarin and pival were introduced. These poisons were of great assistance in the work. At this time, too, it was found constant vigil was necessary and full time pest control officers are on duty all along the border.

In 1952-53 600 colonies were reported, in 1955 there were only 162 known colonies. While the boundary has been moved back east during 1956, it has spread north.

Pest control workers feel rats can be eliminated with the new poisons and constant vigilance and they urge everyone to cooperate in exterminating this expensive pest.

Mineral Rights

The oil and gas industry in Alberta is booming. The value of production is rapidly overhauling that of agriculture and the end is not in sight. For the majority of farmers this does not have too much personal significance other than to possibly develop a twinge of resentment. The fact that someone else draws a rich harvest from under their land that dwarfs the results of a lifetime's struggle to extricate a livelihood from the surface does not always tend to add to their contentment.

There are, however, some who are fortunate enough to hold unrestricted, or partially restricted, titles to land that was alienated from the Crown before 1887. These people own all or part of the mineral rights. No matter in what part of the province they are located or how far they are from producing areas, they are likely to have considerable value. However, in spite of wide publicity given to the earlier experiences of men who parted with their rights for a fraction of their true value, there are still cases of leases and sales being made without due consideration.

Reputable trust companies with qualified consultants and others with wide experience make a business of advising and helping individuals who have their own rights. They can, and do, give valuable assistance to many. Farmers holding mineral rights would do well to consult someone of this nature before entering into any deals on their own.

A Poor Starter

Many a man would have risen to prominence in his special field, if it had not been for the fact that he was a very poor starter. He could not quite make up his mind. He intended—so he thought—fully intended to begin something which he clearly realized was a most desirable work, yet he could never quite make up his mind to begin. And as the weeks lengthened into months, and the months became years, he saw his life's great chance slip slowly by—forever. He meant to do many things, but he never learned to begin.

Others far less gifted than he, accomplished twice what he did because they had learned how to begin what they wanted to do.

Wishing never sharpens a tool, nor lays the foundation of anything worth while, unless it is accompanied by the will to do. Better begin what we really want to do, while we possess the strength and ability to do it.

It is estimated that 29 per cent of Alberta homes have TV sets.

Peace Is Threatened

The whole world should sit up and take notice of the strife between Israel and her Arab neighbors in the Holy Land. Deep racial bitterness has been compounded by the bitterness engendered by jealousy.

Israel has grown in population with a wide-open immigration policy from a poor little orphan among nations, in eight short years, to a youth flexing his muscles. Great agricultural industrial and political progress has taken place in Israel. On the other hand, the neighboring Arab nations are still living much as they did before. Under dictatorship, with the vast majority of their peoples in squalor, disease, poverty and hunger.

So it isn't surprising that the backward Moslem peoples are jealous of their Israel neighbors—and afraid that the new Jewish nation is a threat to their national existence.

The whole situation is also a threat to the Peace of the whole world.

Famous Quotes

Ask any schoolboy what democracy is, and he'll probably blurt back at you these words as a stock definition. Ask him who he's quoting and the chances are he doesn't know. Astually he's quoting at least five men.

Many identify the phrase with Lincoln and Gettysburg. During the American Civil War, the president rode out by train to Gettysburg to help dedicate a cemetery in honour of the soldiers fallen there. Expecting to be called on "to say something" he borrowed, so the story goes, a scrap of paper and a pencil from a fellow passenger, and noted down a few sentiments. The polished two-hour speech of the brilliant orator who preceded him has largely been forgotten, but Lincoln's Gettyburg address, though taking less than two minutes to read, has gone down in history with the truly great literature of all time. The words above are a part of the last long sentence, an appeal for resolution in that dark hour, " . . . and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

That speech was given in 1863, but our quote seems to have been in use for centuries. English reformer John Wycliffe may have originated it. In the preface to his 1394 translation of the Bible he wrote: "This Bible is for the government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Thomas Cooper, an American scientist and educator, used a variation of it in 1795. So also did Senator Daneld Webster in 1830, and theologian Theodore Parker in 1850, 1854, and 1858. But it took Licoln and the contex of Gettysburg to make the words famous.

Poland Needs More Wheat

An insight into the recent Poznan riots, which were so ruthlessly subdued in Poznan, Poland, last week, was unknowingly evident in a visit of a Polish official to Calgary last month, before the hunger riots broke out.

People in Poland are hungry. Their communist doctrine hasn't provided them with enough to eat. Poland needs more wheat.

Mr. Zyto, Polish commercial attache at Ottawa, in an interview with The Calgary Herald, recently stated that Poland needed wheat badly and would be willing to take a larger portion of Canada's stock if financing could be arranged. Mr. Zyto is presently endeavoring to sell more goods to Canada and increase sales from the present $600,000 annually to $5 million in order to build up sufficient reserves to purchase Canadian products, including wheat. One product which he was pushing particularly is cement of which he claims Poland can supply half a million tons. Last year Poland bought $26 million worth of wheat in Canada with a 15 percent cash payment and 85 percent loan from the Export Credits Insurance Corporation.

The Bible Today

For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy.—II Timothy 3:2.

How sweet a thing it is as we go or ride, or eat or drink, or converse abroad, to remember that one is the heir of the whole world and the friend of God!

FAVORS CBC

It is noted with much satisfaction that the preponderance of briefs submitted to the Royal Commission on Broadcasting favor continuance of the CBC controls of TV and radio.

This was to be expected since the Canadian people generally are in favor of even stronger controls and more financial support by government. There are many reasons for this support of the CBC. Many, like the writer, find it impossible to tune into business-sponsored private programs because of the excessive time consumed in monotonous high pressure advertising which spoils what might have been a fair program. Also the standard of the content of the CBC programs far excel any material coming from across the line. The news broadcasts are more objective and contain a wider field of material and view. The Canadian people prefer to hear all sides of all questions rather than being spoonfed with slanted, one-sided views some privately-owned stations like to use.

TV and radio are mediums of education as well as entertainment and many feel the need of such programs most of which Business will not sponsor.

Broadcasting costs money and the citizens have to pay for all programs, in one way or another under any system. This payment can be made directly through taxes and by grants, or added to the cost of consumer goods and then deducted from corporation taxes as operating costs exemptions. Labor's recommendations of a $40,000,000 a year grant to start with seems like a good method to enable the CBC to raise the standard of programs, and give better coverage.

We have lost a great deal of freedom of speech through our newspapers of late years by monopoly control, and the Canadian people want to keep broadcasting in their own hands.

BOOK REVIEW

There's an old saying that those who can read, but don't aren't any better off than those who can't read. So may I have a little space in your letter box to tell about a small book I've just chuckled the evening through reading.

The book is called, "They've Turned Their Backs to the Bible." I. V. Macklin, the author, is well fitted for the writing of it. Holding a degree from an eastern university and studying for the ministry, ill health drove him, on doctor's orders, "out into the open air." So he came west, away west, into the Peace River country in the days before roads or railways opened it up.

Now a prosperous farmer in Grande Prairie, active in farm, co-op and church and community work, he still finds time to listen to and make notes on the Social Credit "Back to the Bible" radio program.

As the title indicates, and as he good-humoredly shows, not all who cry "Lord, Lord" are really concerned with bringing the Kingdom of Heaven into the lives of men—or for that matter, into their own lives.

Mr. Macklin has courage, intelligence backed by good earthy common sense, true reverence for Christian faith, and a deep and abiding love of his fellow-man. All this shines through his book and makes it instructive and interesting reading.

BINGO BEEFS

I have been to many car bingos, but not one was run as lax as the one I went to Saturday, June 23, at Vermilion. It was advertised to start at nine. We got there at 8:15, bought tickets and sat down. About 9:30 they started to test the microphone and half the people couldn't hear. Well, about 10 o'clock they got started (mike not fixed), but the bingos went not too badly, for the checkers repeated the numbers. Usually the car is played for at other bingos the next to last game, so that the car bingo was checked, but at this bingo it was played last and the winners cards were not even checked by the balls that were on the table.

Chrysler Sales Show Big Increase

WINDSOR — For the first five months of the current year, sales of Chrysler of Canada automobiles have increased by 11.3 percent over one year ago, it was announced here today.

The company's gain compares with an increase throughout the entire industry in Canada of one-half of one percent for the same period.

Statistics compiled from registrations of new cars with provincial licensing bureaux across Canada show that for this January-May period, Chrysler of Canada automobile registrations accounted for approximately 28 percent of the total market.

Backward spring weather in May brought a slight drop in passenger car registrations throughout Canada, with the industry as a whole showing a decline of 8.3 percent. Chrysler registrations were off 6.6 percent for the month.

Since then, according to a company spokesman, demand has picked up substantially. Recently the corporation recorded a new peak in employment of approximately 11,800 persons. The plants are operating on a two-shift, 16-hour basis to keep abreast of sales.

Pipe Line Activity Speeds Industrial Development Here

Federal approval of a temporary loan to aid Trans Canada Pipeline company to start building the "big inch" that will carry Alberta gas to eastern markets has sparked new activity in the booming industrial fields of the west.

Most recent development is the granting of a temporary provincial loan of $3,690,000 to Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. to help finance the pipeline gathering system in this province. The company is a special body composed of representatives of the public, the producers and distributors of nautral gas. Under Alberta regulations, they will buy the gas for export and deliver it to Trans Canada at the Saskatchewan border. The present loan will be made by the Alberta Industrial Corporation, a Crown body set up to make short term industrial loans.

Under the present mode of operation, the government buys the corporation's debentures, so that actually, the Trunk Line loan is an indirect loan from the province.

Speaking in Edmonton last week on gas line developments, Senator David A. Croll, former mayor of Windsor, said eastern markets are waiting for Alberta natural gas. He told a news conference the line will bring new industries to the west, and spark a new wave of prosperity.

Mr. Croll agreed with Premier Manning's declaration that foreign investors should be encouraged to invest their money here to develop our own natural resources.

Late reports indicate that thousands of carloads of pipe for Trans Canada are now moving west from assembling yards.

The boom, so to speak, has boomed.

City's Building Total Doubles

EDMONTON (BUP) — Edmonton's June building total is expected to be almost doubled that of May.

While totals are not yet final for the month, the value of permits issued the city building departent will be at least close to $12,000,000 copared with $5,380,000 for May and and $6,870,000 for June of 1955.

The June total received a healthy boost Friday of last week of $1,000,000 with a permit issued to cover construction of a six-storey office structure at 102 Street and 102 Avenue.

Airlines Win Safety Award

Northwest Orient Airlines is one of 14 domestic trunk air carriers of the United States which were given the National Safety Council's Award of Honor for operating throughout 1955 without a fatality to passengers or crews. The announcement was released in Edmonton by Douglas McLeod, district manager.

In addition to the 14 trunk lines, a group of local service lines, carriers, territorial lines, and helicopter lines — a total of 40 altogether — operated with perfect safety records during 1955. Up to the end of last year, Northwest had operated four years and had flown 4,339,212,000 passenger miles without a fatality.

The 1955 passenger death rate for the airlines of .76 death per 100 million passenger miles of domestic operations marked the fourth year that the rate had been below 1. The best previous rate was .09 in 1954.

All National Safety Council awards were made on the basis of records of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and total miles are those accumulated in scheduled passenger-carrying operations only.

Uranium Hunters Probe Lake Athabasca Veins

Rands and Associates, exploration consultants for Varmac Uranium Mines Ltd. have recommended further drilling to test the uniformity of three radio-active veins which are under development at the Sucker Bay site of Lake Athabasca.

Radioactive logs from these three holes are available, the consultants report. They are located at 100 foot intervals, and in each one, the probers found radioactive zones.

The holes are being drilled on the basis of outcroppings, and the findings to date appear to indicate that veins 1 and 2 converge at depth and all three converge toward the east.

Radioactive zones are reported to be fairly uniform at depth, and all appear to dip northward almost vertically.

On the basis of these findings the exploration firm is recommending that further drilling be carried out to determine whether the various veins are continous, whether they grow stronger with depth or whether they are composed of local radioactive concentrations.

Request Poll On Military Service

EDMONTON (BUP) — The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce will send a resolution to the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, asking that the national organization conduct a poll across Canada on the question of compulsory military service.

The poll would ask all chamber members if they were for national service for young men between the ages of 16 and 25 "if the Federal government considers it necessary."

The national organization will meet in Quebec in October.

Health Unit Notes

By PEGGY GRAHAM, R.N.

DENTAL HEALTH

Good teeth are important for four reasons:

1. They are necessary for good health.
2. Good - looking teeth are an asset to good appearance.
3. They are necessary for mastication.
4. They assist in speech.

Foundation Teeth

Nature has given us two sets of teeth, foundation (or baby) teeth, and secondary teeth.

There are 20 foundation teeth. They are partly formed before the child is born. They begin to appear when the baby is about six months old, and usually are erupted at two and one-half years. Normally, they are all lost by the age of 12. Because the foundation teeth have important duties to perform during the first 12 years of life, they should have the best attention and care. They should not be considered as temporary teeth but as foundation teeth and the last four molars to erupt, two on the upper jaw and two on the lower jaw, are perhaps the most important teeth of this set as they guide and hold the four "Sixth-year molars" to their proper position in the mouth.

The foundation teeth should be preserved in health until the secondary teeth are ready to erupt:

1. For thorough chewing of food.
2. To help guide the secondary teeth into position.
3. To aid in normal jaw development.
4. To prevent irregularity of the secondary teeth.

Secondary Teeth

Normally, there are 32 secondary teeth. The earliest of the secondary teeth to erupt are first so-called "permanent" molars. They usually appear between the fifth and seventh year. Hence, they are frequently called the "Sixth-year molars." They erupt immediately behind the last baby teeth. These four "Sixth-year molars," two in the upper jaw and and two in the lower jaw, are exceedingly valuable and very often neglected.

The loss of even one of the earliest secondary or "Sixth-year molars" may cause the other teeth to shift their positions, which may destroy the natural form of the face and even the good appearance of the child. The first secondary molars should be examined by a dentist just as soon as they erupt into the mouth, and they, as well as all of the other so-called permanent teeth, should be preserved throughout life, if proper care is taken.

Early And Regular Care

The child should be taken to the dentist soon after all the baby teeth have appeared, at the age of two and one-half or three years, and thereafter at least twice a year for dental examinations. If decay is found early, the dentist can remove it with little or no pain and fill the cavity while it is small, and thus preserve the tooth.

If treatment is delayed, decay progresses toward the pulp (nerve) in the centre of the tooth, causing more pain and later leading to an abscess and sometimes illness.

The mouth is an ideal place for the growing of disease germs as it has the temperature, moisture and food material needed for their growth. The cleaner the surfaces of the teeth can be kept, the less inviting they are to germs. The grooves on the chewing surfaces of the teeth, the surfaces between the teeth, and also the surfaces near the gum margins require special brushing, because food and germs are easily retained in these places. Decay usually begins there.

Take the child to the dentist before discomforting operations are necessary This will prevent fear of the dental office and enable the dentist to make friends with the child.

Decay Or Caries

Dental caries is the technical term for tooth decay. The actual causes of dental decay are as yet unknown. Most studies on this subject seem to indicate that decay of the enamel and dentin is caused by the action of mouth germs (bacteria) upon certain food, principally sweets, when left on the teeth. This action produces acids which destroy the enamel and dentin of the teeth and, if continued without interference, will cause the death of the pulp (nerve). Poisons from the infected pulp may cause an abscess to form at the end of the tooth root.

This infection, if not eliminated, not only affects the teeth and jaws, but also eventually, may be carried to other parts of the body, such as the heart, eyes, kidneys and joints.

To prevent this, even small defects in the teeth should be immediately corrected.
